

IN REGARD TO THE BREAD QUESTION

I Agree With Secretary Wilson of the Dept. of Agriculture

THAT-- "The Lightness and Sweetness of Bread Depend As Much on the Way It Is Made As on the Ingredients Used."

(The Washington Times felt that the importance of the above statement from the recent bulletin on "Bread and Bread Making," issued by the Department of Agriculture, warranted its publication, together with editorial comment, in its issue of April 18, 1910).

(SIGNED),

I REALIZED years ago what the Department of Agriculture has just published as a fact; namely, that you cannot make good bread without good ingredients--and, further, that the better the baking facilities the better the bread will be.

When I say better bread, I mean a more wholesome as well as a more appetizing loaf. In order to give the buying public the best possible loaf of bread I have not stopped with the finest ingredients that money can buy, but have spent thousands of dollars in establishing a scientifically equipped bakery and maintaining it in a sanitary condition.

As it has been impossible to bring the readers of The Times in any great numbers to this bakery, I have brought the bakery to the readers of The Times--in picture form, printed in page and double-page newspaper advertisements that are costing hundreds of dollars. All this time, energy and money have been spent but for one purpose--to induce YOU to try one loaf of

On the Question of Bread and Bread Baking

We don't allow this bread, over which we have exercised such great care during the making and baking, to be thrown around grocery stores and handled by many hands in various stages of uncleanness. Instead, it is delivered direct from those who make it to those who eat it in our own Sanitary Delivery Wagons. That's why we can sell you such bread for
